Regional animal shelter numbers on the rise

By Allison Aloisio

In 2013, 30 cats and 40 dogs from the Bethel area found themselves at Responsible Pet Care in South Paris.

They were among a total of 390 cats and 172 dogs from 21 towns brought to the no-kill shelter. RPC has a capacity of 150 cats and 15 dogs at its new facility off High Street.

It's filled to capacity with cats right now, with another 15 felines in foster homes. The current dog population stands at 10.

Lucille Larsen, the shelter's manager, said the trend in recent years has been an increase in the numbers of animals coming into RPC.

She said it's mainly economy-related. In some cases, she said, "It's people losing their homes." When the people lose their homes, the pets lose their people.

But in the big picture, the vast majority of cats are strays - only 32 last year were given up by their owners.

Many of the dogs are also strays, and a sizeable portion of them are returned to their owners. Of the rest, 61 were adopted last year. Almost no stray cats are claimed by owners, Larsen said.

When a stray pet comes in, it's nearly always via the animal control officer for the town where it was found.

In the immediate Bethel area, 10 cats came from

Newry proposing security system, $200,000 in paving

By Allison Aloisio
and Amy Chapman

Newry's tentative 2014 municipal budget calls for $829,475 to be raised in taxes and $250,000 to be taken from the Capital Projects Account for road-related expenses.

Voters will consider the budget at their March 3 Town Meeting. Selectmen were scheduled to meet today (Thursday) to finalize and sign the warrant. They completed most work on the budget Tuesday.

Last year's amount raised from taxes was $771,838.

Roadwork

Paving is planned for the Monkey Brook and Skiway roads, for an estimated $200,000.

Up to $50,000 from Capital is expected to be earmarked to cover engineering for improvements to an approximately 1,100-foot stretch of the outer Sunday River Road. Selectmen are uncertain whether the construction can be completed this year. If the engineering work is approved and they do decide to proceed this year, a special Town Meeting would be required to approve funding, Town Administrator Loretta Powers said Wednesday. Estimates for construction have been more than $300,000.

Selectmen received five bids for engineering Tuesday and will review them before making a decision.

There is currently $218,000 in the CP Account. Another $271,000 is proposed to be moved from the $1.1 million Surplus Account to the Capital account, bringing Surplus in line with the $800,000 figure recommended by the town's auditor.

Of the $271,000 to be moved, $75,000 is proposed to reduce taxes.

Town Office break-in

In other proposed expenses, selectmen will recommend $6,000 to cover a new security system for the Town Office, in the wake of a break-in two weeks ago. Powers said that the night after the last selectmen's meeting on Feb. 4, someone broke in through the back door and stole about $75 in cash.

The overall municipal building account is proposed to increase from $27,300 to $43,350, including (in addition to the security system) $6,000 for new carpet and $3,500 for chimney repairs.

The budget also includes $35,500 for the Grange Hall, up from $12,500 for furnace replacement, chimney repair and other improvements.

AES kicks off new recycling program

By Amy Chapman

Andover Elementary School has kicked off a new recycling program that aims to cut down on the amount of solid waste produced at the school and educate students about the benefits of recycling.

Last week Leo Maheu, Environmental Educator for Ecomaine, Maine's largest recycling facility, visited the school to explain how recycled materials are mechanically sorted at the Portland facility and compressed into bales. They are then sold to buyers who use them to manufacture new paper, plastic, and metal products.

Maheu explained that recycling saves energy, water, and space in landfills. For every ton of paper that is recycled, 17 trees are saved, and 587 fewer pounds of air pollution are produced.

Education is key to increasing recycling rates, according to Maheu, and many people still do not realize the impact recycling has on the environment. For example, he said, aluminum is one of the easiest materials to recycle, yet Americans throw away enough aluminum every three months to rebuild the entire U.S. commercial air fleet.

Thanks to a $300 grant from Ecomaine that allowed the school to purchase a recycling unit and bins, many of the disposable items used for school lunches will now be recycled instead of thrown in the trash. Lunch trays, paper napkins, and milk and juice cartons will

Citizen profiles: Debra Brown

By Rosabelle Tift

Debra Brown's 19th century banjo ukulele holds a very special meaning for her. Her Uncle, Willie Hathaway, gave her the rare instrument a year ago, just two weeks before he passed away. "It was one of his prized possessions, and he had faith in me that I'd learn to play it," explained Debra. "He knew of my interest in wanting to accompany myself while singing solos."

Gail Scott, musician, restored the banjo and Debra joined her ukulele class. The banjo ukulele has a unique twang, unlike the strumming of a regular ukulele, and she enjoys learning to play it. Debra's passion for music started at an early age in school choirs, All State in Junior High, and family gatherings. However, she is in her element when singing in church. She served as worship leader at the Praise Assembly of God Church in Rumford for fifteen years. Two years ago she joined the Locke Mills Union Church, where she once took summer bible classes. She joined the choir and also sings in solos at funerals and other occasions.

This has heightened her interest in learning to play the banjo ukulele to accompany her singing. Beginning in March, she will lead a Sunday night service of praise, prayer and study at her church and also hopes to bring some contemporary Christian music to the younger people. Her faith is important to her and she looks forward to sharing it through this service.

A CHOICE IN NEWRY

To the Editor:

My name is Doug Webster. I live in Newry with my wife and two children. I am running for Selectman so I can help the Board continue to revamp town and employee policies and bylaws as well as to perform my civic duty to serve and be involved. I will take this job seriously and stay engaged both during and outside of meetings. Before my current job, I was self-employed for 30+ years, running businesses in Newry for 16 of them. Whether I win or lose, the voters will appreciate having a choice. I see change as constructive, not threatening. I will bring fresh ideas and perspectives to the table.

I have been involved in different aspects of Newry's town government since 2009. I have helped to count votes at elections, have been a member of the Appeals Board, was involved with the Scenic Byways Committee, was on the Bylaws Committee, and am a current member of the Planning Board. In my work in these various positions, I realize there is still work to be done.

While on the Bylaws Committee, we reviewed an assortment of documents from other towns and the Maine Municipal Association that made clear to me that Newry's collection of bylaws, ordinances, and policies need to be analyzed, assessed, and presented in a format that is easily accessible to the public. This committee worked throughout the summer and fall and presented a set of bylaws and an Ethics Policy to the current Selectboard, who voted to accept the work, seeing it as a benefit to the town.

I will continue to analyze and assess policies that are necessary to give the Selectboard more guidance.

With proper policies, including a review process, the Selectboard will be able to make decisions based on set guidelines, making business run more smoothly, efficiently and transparently, and minimizing issues.

I will continue to work with the office staff, who I greatly admire for their dedication and hard work, to make the town office as efficient and productive as possible.

The town of Newry has a strong tax base, but most residents are hardworking, sometimes struggling and by no means rich. I will be diligent in watching your taxes and be open to your interests so we can work together in these changing economic times.

THS DRAMA PRODUCTIONS IMPORTANT

To the Editor:

It was with a sad heart that we read of the cancellation of the spring musical at Telstar this year. As parents of children who were very involved in the Drama Club and big fans of past musical productions, we hope that this is not the end of drama at Telstar High School, but merely a temporary glitch.

Many people have put in a great deal of time and effort over the years to put on quality productions. We believe that teachers, staff and especially students have benefited by the camaraderie of the productions and the audiences have benefitted greatly by enjoying free family entertainment. We feel that the arts are an important part of education and should be held in the same esteem as college preparatory classes and sports involvement.

Our children learned a great deal during their time at Telstar and have gone on to do very well in college. Our hope is that, as a community, we will continue to support the arts at Telstar and encourage the school to continue on with future drama productions.

FLYING MOOSE THANKS

To the Editor:

We would like to thank the many volunteers who helped host this year's hugely successful Flying Moose Classic XC ski race sponsored by the Bethel Outing Club at the Gould Academy ski trails. We had a terrific turnout for the 7.5k and 22k races, as well as a 2.25k middle school race and a lollipop-race. The day went smoothly thanks to Gould Academy for donating the use of the field house for registration, the upper field for the stadium, and the trails at Pine Hill.

We could not have done it without the assistance of many wonderful volunteers including: Christin Christoph, Colin Reuter, Julia Reuter, Eric List, Buzz Gamble, Cathy Lane, Amy Gumprecht, Savannah Sessions, Linda Gamble, Mike Hoeh, Lorrie Hoeh, Martha Siegel, Beth Clarke, Suzanne Pierce, Cathy Heffernan, Gary Inman, Lesley Rouse, Saranne Taylor, Elissa Lufkin, Brad Clarke, Kirk Siegel, and others who helped throughout the day. With a special thank you to Jeremy Nellis for grooming and laying out the course and to Tracyn Thayer for coordinating the youth events.

WHO CARES?

To the Editor:

Two or three weeks ago a U.S. Senate subcommittee conducted hearings into problems with the Obamacare website. When senators asked technicians knowledgeable about the website, how secure the website was, more than one technician replied, "Zero percent secure!" In other words any private or financial information input into the website can be easily hacked.

Subsequently, Senator Ted Cruise, with a number of co-sponsors, introduced legislation which would require the Federal Government to take measures to make the website secure. Senate democrats, led by Senator Harry Reed, refused to allow the legislation to be debated on the Senate floor. Apparently, democrats would rather allow citizens to be exposed to possible identity theft and potential financial ruin than for them to find out about the dangers of using the site.

It seems that the Obama Administration and democrats will do or say anything to prevent anyone except the President himself from making changes to the "Affordable Care Act!" Deception and lies are not exempted.

The Fire Department budget is proposed to go from $87,000 to $74,000. The budget includes an increase in firefighter pay, the first since 2009. Selectmen Wendy Hanscom and Brooks Morton voted at an earlier meeting to increase the rate for calls from $12 to $15/hour, and the rate for attendance at meetings from $10 to $12/hour.

Selectman Gary Wight, who is a member of the Fire Department, abstained from the vote. Stipends for officers will remain the same. With the proposed increase in firefighter pay, the amount budgeted for department wages increased from $23,000 to $36,500.

In other areas of the department's budget, a total of $6,500 will be saved by reductions in the amounts Fire Chief Bruce Pierce is requesting for the equipment, training, and operations and maintenance accounts.

The Highway Maintenance Account is proposed at $136,250, up from $128,500. The Summer Roads Account would increase from $35,000 to $40,000.

After reviewing the annual wage report from the Maine Municipal Association, which compares salaries and stipends in towns across the state, the board voted to give 2 percent raises to all town office employees. If voters approve the budget, the raises will go into effect following Town Meeting. They will not be retroactive to the time of the vote.

Voters will also be asked if they wish to approve $500 to support Mollyockett Days in Bethel.

The county tax is $344,983, down a bit from last year.

The school budget share has not yet been determined.

Elections
Wendy Hanscom and Doug Webster are vying for a three-year term on the Board of Selectmen, a seat that has been held by Hanscom for the past 19 years.

Powers said that Alan Fleet, who has served as animal control officer for 30 years, is not seeking re-election.

Bonnie Largess' three-year school board term expires and she is seeking re-election. Bruce Pierce, who had considered running for the seat, said last week he had decided against it for this year.

The Town Meeting will take place at the Grange Hall, beginning with a potluck supper at 5:30 p.m. The business portion of the meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Bonkers, a recent resident of Responsible Pet Care.

And for those cats that just don't want to share their lives with people, hope is not lost. They can find a place in the "Barn Buddies" program, which Larsen has personally overseen for about a decade.

"People come in and want a cat for their barn [to help keep the rodent population down]," said Larsen.

Under the program they are required to take two cats. In return they make a donation in an amount of their choice.

"In 2013 we placed 27 cats," Larsen said.

The cats are not turned loose in the barns to simply fend for themselves, however. The adopters feed and keep the felines up to date on shots.

Then there's the Trap, Neuter and Release program. If a farmer, for example, finds himself being overrun with reproducing stray or feral cats, RPC helps pay for neutering and other care to try to keep the population in check and healthy.

RPC is now getting some help with sheltering animals in the Bethel area from the recently established Heart of the Mountains shelter for dogs.

For more on Responsible Pet Care go to <http://members.petfinder.com/~ME44/>.

Options for cats

The cats are spayed or neutered and given the shots they need. Then, if they are sociable enough, they are put up for adoption. Last year 367 found homes.

Larsen takes pride in the success RPC has in domesticating feral cats (which have lived with no or little contact with people).

be recycled through Andover's contract with Ecomaine, and food waste will be composted.

Patty Duguay from River Valley Healthy Communities brought a large bin full of trash and challenged the students to sort out the recyclable items. In the end, they were able to fit the items to be thrown away into just one small plastic bag, while more than half of the contents of the bin were identified as recyclable.

Duguay told the students that even though recycling is easy, saves money, and helps the environment, only one out of three glass containers sold in the U.S. is recycled.

"We can do a lot better than that," she said. "Remember the three R's—Reduce, Reuse, Recycle. Look for the chasing arrow symbol that means you can recycle the packaging, and make good choices about the products you buy."

Ecomaine provided each student with a magnet listing recyclable materials, as a reminder to encourage recycling at home, while AES teachers received tote bags made from recycled plastic water bottles.

Andover Elementary School PTA Secretary Darlene Akers helps Hayley Smith sort items from her lunch tray to be recycled.

Deb Brown with her ukelele instructor, Gail Scott.

Debra is a native of Locke's Mills, the daughter of Pip and Ada Cummings. Although her family moved to New Jersey when she was 2 1/2 years old, they returned some 12 years later. Her family moved again in two years to Massachusetts and New Jersey. She claims she attended four different high schools in three different places. "People ask me how I could have been happy living in three states," she said. "I've always believed one should 'bloom where planted'; and if you look for the good in places and people you will find it and be much happier."

Debra eloped shortly after high school graduation in New Jersey and she and her husband, John Swick, had two children. During this time, she also attended beauty school. She claims her heart always belonged to Bethel and when her husband became disabled in 1986, they returned. The move also brought her closer to her sister, Macky Chapman, a substitute teacher, who had been living in Bethel since 1967. Her brother, Buddy, continues to live in New Jersey. Debra's interest in nutrition led her to work in the Gould Academy cafeteria. She also became a trained Pampered Chef consultant.

Around this time, Debra became aware that Bethel had been without a barber, ever since Bethel's popular barber, Stan Fox, passed away. Debra had always liked cutting hair and decided to enroll in barber school in Auburn. "Never had a doll with any hair as I always cut it off, so I started young," she said. She found that she learned more about hair coloring and perms in this course than she learned in beauty school. She became a licensed barber and opened her shop, "His Place," on the Flat Road in West Bethel. Just two years after returning to Bethel, Debra lost her husband in a tractor accident. She said her faith in God got her through the pain of his passing and brought Owen Brown into her life. She felt blessed to have met him and they were married. Debra considers the blending of Owen's and her families her greatest achievement. She and Owen each have two children and she proudly says all four are now healthy, caring and productive adults. Debra and Owen will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary in March. They recently became members of the West Bethel Grange because, "they care about the community," Debra said.

Five years ago, Debra joined Gail Weston at the "Root Cellar." When Gail retired a year ago, Debra took over the shop. She says she serves an equal number of men and women in her family hair care shop. She believes continuing education is important for her to stay on top of her field. She takes at least one course annually and in a recent course became a "grand master" in manicures. Another cosmetologist works with her who also does manicures and pedicures. Debra said in addition to a full pedicure, many seniors take advantage of her basic pedicure that consists of a foot massage and toenail cutting.

Debra is quick to affirm her love for Bethel where she says people are friendly and do care. While walking the streets, they will speak even if they don't know you. "Best of all they are there to help people through hard times with fund raisers, gifts of food or just being there," she said. "Life is exciting and I thank God every morning for another day to experience in Bethel."

State to manage Upper Andro trout fishery

By Terry Karkos/
Sun Media Wire

Given that the Upper Androscoggin River is mainly a trout fishery, the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife will now manage it as such, according to its new plan.

The Upper Androscoggin River Fishery Management Plan by state fisheries biologists Francis Brautigam and James Pellerin was released last month and made available on the department's website, www.maine.gov/ifw.

Although the 'upper' portion of the river is from the Maine-New Hampshire state line to Rumford's Pennacook Falls, the report focuses on the more heavily fished section from the state line in Gilead to Davis Park in Bethel.

The management goal is to develop and maintain a year-round, open-water fishery primarily for rainbow trout and a second fishery for brown and brook trout, the document states.

That was good news for area fish conservation and recreation groups who participated in the process via a Public Working Group to develop a management plan.

"Speaking for myself as a member of the PWG, I thought the report was very good," Dick Walters of the Mollycodd Chapter of Trout Unlimited said in a recent e-mail.

He credited Brautigam and Pellerin for their extensive work on the project.

"The Andro is a complex water system," Walters said. "There are unique challenges when you try and please everyone. The openness with which the report was done makes this a credible report."

"This is great," Wende Gray of the Upper Andro Anglers Alliance in Bethel by e-mail. "We are pleased that IF&W considered the Upper Andro a top priority for a management plan."

According to the plan, management should strive to create opportunities enjoyed by adults and youth of varying skill and ability levels. It lists four key expectations that support successful management:

• Provide adequate, long-term public access opportunities for various angler user groups.

• Maintain river aesthetics and scenery.

• Provide relatively high trout catch rates.

• And provide opportunity for catching some trout of larger size quality.

The department admits that it cannot achieve full attainment of the goal, but will require support and active involvement from other state agencies, local towns, the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments in Auburn, land trusts, conservation organizations like Trout Unlimited, the alliance and the Androscoggin River Watershed Council, private landowners and those who recreate on the Androscoggin River.

That said, it's not something that's going to happen entirely in this upcoming fishing season, Scott Stone, president of the Upper Andro Anglers Alliance, said.

"We are dealing with a body of water that at one time had a magnificent fishery and at one time was one of the top polluted rivers in the country," Stone said.

"That river's been through a lot. We want to make this body of water one of the best top 10 rivers to fish for trout, but for something like that to happen, it isn't going to happen in the blink of an eye."

The idea is to maximize trout survival rather than just keep dumping fish into the river annually for a put-and-take fishery, Stone said.

"One of the things I think we as a culture look for is we look for things to be 'fixed' or 'changed' and we expect these things to happen quickly, which is the way the world works, but not the way Mother Earth works," he said.

"We wanted to try and let Mother Nature help us bring it back. What we didn't want to do was to introduce a bunch of ridiculous regulations."

"One of the things we want to do is to create a sustainable fishery so the fish level and quality match the quality of the river and that's how it becomes sustainable," Stone said. "It's not about how many fish we put in; it's about how many fish survive. So we need to create a better quality of water to hold a better quality of fish."

He said the practical and logical approach is to restore the river to its past prior to it being used as a dumping ground for pollutants.

According to the plan, management objectives are to:

• Provide a trout fishery comprised primarily of rainbow trout, and a secondary fishery for brown and brook trout to maintain desired diversity and to maximize habitat use.

• Provide desirable angler trout catch rates for 10- to 14-inch-long trout.

• Provide opportunity to catch trout greater than 14 inches long.

• Protect and enhance the contribution of wild rainbow trout, even though annual stocking will likely be necessary to sustain desired angler catch rates on a consistent basis.

• Collect biological, chemical, physical and recreational angling data to support long-term management.

• Create desirable angling opportunities on the upper Androscoggin River and other waters in the area that will attract anglers and support the local economy by better using the existing infrastructure developed to service the winter snow sports industry.

• Investigate opportunities to increase fish-holding structure, such as habitat type, substrate and depths.

• Identify and explore opportunities to correct areas of significant bank erosion that may be impacting downstream habitat from sedimentation.

• Encourage and support local planning efforts to protect the scenic and aesthetic qualities important to river anglers.

"We're happy where we're at at this point now, but there is a lot of pressure on IF&W to put in a lot of fish," Stone said. "Maybe that's not the best thing to do to allow this magnificent body of water to return to its former state."

Going green at Gould: Energy upgrades yield savings

By Amy Chapman

Thanks to recent energy upgrades in just one building on campus, Gould Academy was able to cut its annual CO2 emissions by an amount equal to the emissions from 12 single-family homes.

As part of its commitment to energy conservation, last year the school decided to take a hard look at Ordway Hall, the largest energy-consuming facility on campus, and see what could be done to improve efficiency.

Gould contracted with Optimal Energy Group of Sumner, which partners with Efficiency Maine to help businesses and institutions realize energy savings.

Optimal Energy conducted an analysis and energy audit, provided data on savings, then contracted for the upgrades. Efficiency Maine, a quasi-state agency that manages energy-saving programs, provided engineering reviews as well as incentives that offset part of the cost of implementation.

After taking into consideration not only the potential for energy savings, but also Gould's objectives for improving aesthetics, maintenance issues, and safety, Larry O'Rourke of Optimal Energy said lighting was chosen as the focus of the first upgrades.

"We made 425 changes to the lighting, ranging from simple bulb replacements to replacing or retrofitting fixtures, adding fixtures, re-circuiting as appropriate, and replacing an obsolete lighting control system," said O'Rourke.

Blanco, Gould to do writing program

BETHEL-Inaugural poet Richard Blanco on Thursday (today) will announce a visiting writers program in his name at Gould Academy. Over a two-week retreat, writers will stay in a private cottage owned by Blanco where they can work on their craft. They'll also engage with students and faculty through classroom visits and workshops. Blanco wrote and read poem, "One Today," that paid homage to the American experience during President Barack Obama's second inauguration.

Mass. boy hurt in snowmobile crash

BETHEL-Game wardens investigated a single snowmobile crash in Bethel Tuesday morning, according to a Maine Warden Service press release. Ann Vinton, 47, from South Weymouth, Mass. was operating a rented snowmobile with her nine-year-old son as passenger. Vinton lost control, left the trail, and collided with several small trees. Upon impact, her son received facial lacerations from his helmet visor. The boy was transported to Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway where he was treated and released. Vinton was riding with her husband and second child; they were on another snowmobile. Game wardens say operator experience was a contributing factor. No charges are expected. Bethel Fire and Rescue assisted in the incident.

The Way I See It

By Sharon Bouchard

The experts may say that the economy is improving and that may very well be true, but you can't prove it by me.

I went to mark a notation on the calendar the other day only to discover I still had a 2013 calendar hanging on the wall. It then dawned on me that I had not been neglectful in changing it, the fact is that I didn't have a 2014 to replace it with.

In past years I have received more free advertising calendars than I could ever use. The oil company always brought one and left it inside my door. My insurance company used to send me one in the mail and my pharmacy and a few other businesses had free calendars on their counters. It seems, at least in my life, there are no more free calendars.

The lack of free calendars is just one more sign that the economy is not getting that much better here in Maine. I'm sure that the cost of calendars and the printing of the company name have gotten way too expensive to be giving such things away. I guess the end of the free calendar is truly the end of the freebies.

That got me thinking about all the freebies of the past. I was telling a young friend about some of them and she couldn't believe that I was telling the truth. I'm sure she thought I was just an old person making up stories. I told her about a time when all gas stations were full service and as well as pumping gas, washing windshields and checking oil without being asked, they gave a free glass! I didn't even bother to mention that this was about 40 years ago and that gas and cigarettes were both 28 cents a gallon and a pack, because I was sure she wouldn't believe that.

The lack of free calendars is just one more sign that the economy is not getting that much better here in Maine.

Since I had my young friend already thinking I had a really faulty memory I decided to tell her how I got my first toaster for free. I told her that I got it from the bank just for opening a savings account. Doubt clouded her eyes, but she didn't say much; just sort of shook her head. I was having a good time walking down memory lane of freebies so I told her how some laundry powders had dishes in the boxes. She didn't say I was full of it, but she did tell me she knew where I could buy some nice swampland.

I was on a roll now so I further explained how once upon a time in America, the grocery stores and some gas stations gave out S&H Green Stamps, Top Value Stamps or Gold Bond Stamps.

"Oh, I've heard about the stamp thing," she said. "Wasn't that rationing during the war?"

That threw me for a loop because I really didn't think I look that old, but to a 27 year old perhaps I do. I clued her in through clenched teeth that I wasn't even born during World War II and the stamps I was talking about you stuck in booklets and when you got a bunch of them you could redeem them for free merchandise.

I decided it was time to change the subject since she did not believe a word I said and we talked about the overall state of the economy, which was something that she did understand. I said that I felt that it was true that the state of the economy here in Maine was not all that good and she agreed.

I also said that we would know it was getting better when all the free calendars returned. And the way I see it, we'll really know that things are great when grocery stores and gas stations start giving out S&H Green Stamps and free glasses.

nier said the school had initially planned to focus on just the dining room, where an electronic panel that allowed the lights to be dimmed as needed was failing.

But when they looked into repairing the existing panel, they learned that, due to improvements in energy technology in the 15 years since it was installed, the panel was considered obsolete. Repairs would have been expensive, and replacement parts would soon be unavailable.

They decided to install a new panel rather than repair the old one, and recommendations from Optimal Energy led to a comprehensive upgrade of the lighting systems.

The new, state-of-the-art dimming panel is actually a computer that can be programmed to raise and lower the level of light as needed, and to control when the lights come on and go off.

"They come on at 5 a.m., when the kitchen crew is starting on breakfast, and go off at midnight," said Bernier. "They automatically dim two hours after sunrise, and get brighter two hours before sunset."

New LED bulbs in the chandeliers and ceiling fixtures, coupled with the ability to program the lighting according to need, have helped to yield an 89 percent reduction in energy consumption in the dining room itself.

In the ceiling fixtures, 250-watt halogen bulbs were replaced with 17-watt LED bulbs, which, in addition to saving energy, improved aesthetics in the kitchen, lobby, and dining room, according to Bernier.

er. "There's a big improvement in the color quality of the light," he said. "It makes the food look better."

The old light bulbs in the dining room chandeliers burned out frequently, requiring maintenance staff to climb ladders to replace them. By comparison, the new LED bulbs, with an estimated life of 50-80,000 hours, should last at least ten to 15 years.

Thanks to guidance from Optimal Energy and immediate savings on electricity costs, as well as incentives that were available through Efficiency Maine, Bernier said, "for what we had planned to spend on just the dining room, we were able to do upgrades in the dining room, lobby, upstairs meeting area, and kitchen."

Gould Academy also valued Optimal Energy's commitment to using local resources. According to O'Rourke, "We were pleased to be able to use almost exclusively Oxford County labor on the project, and were able to source much of the equipment in Maine, including custom fabrication, which we had done in Lewiston."

Prior to the upgrades, lighting in Ordway Hall consumed 150,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity and was responsible for 106 metric tons of carbon dioxide emissions each year. As a result of the energy conservation measures undertaken by the school, electricity use for lighting was reduced by 77 percent, to 35,000 kwh, yielding a reduction of 81 tons in the amount of CO2 produced.

Have you seen the fantastic snow removal being done in Bethel? The town purchased a snow blower last year to help remove snow from the sidewalks. Hello neighbors, what another beautiful week of winter we're having. The fresh snow, the clean air, the longer days, the sound of the finches and chickadees; it's all just so overwhelming at times. The recent storm we got was pretty overwhelming when I got out there on snowshoes. It was tough going, especially with that wind creating some pretty massive drifts. My poor dogs were swimming through and I was definitely not keeping my normal pace. In fact, the snow was so deep and heavy I ended up breaking one of my shoes. Just about a mile back home on one shoe, it was a good thing I had my poles. It was tough. So, it looks like a trip to Freeport is in order.

I caught up with Gloria Crockett last week and she mentioned she and Wilma had been out enjoying the trails. Well, they will be pleased to know that there is a nice trail broken through the woods for them, as 18 of my girlfriends came over on Saturday for my annual full moon snowshoe. Those of us in the front of the pack broke the trail and by the time the back of the pack came along, the trail was a runway.

Chelsea Bean joined us as our official photographer and everyone enjoyed a nice pot luck meal and evening snowshoe in the gently falling snow.

That was too much estrogen for Andy to stick around, so he blessed Aaron and Kellie with his presence.

So, what did you all do for Valentine's Day? I won tickets through work for a hockey game down in Lewiston. Andy and I brought along a couple friends to watch the Bruin Legends play the Lewiston Police Athletic League. How comical that was. We had a good time. They'll be back in March and tickets are general admission if you're looking for something different to make you laugh.

I heard from Angie Haynes recently that Alex was promoted to Sergeant. He's currently serving in Afghanistan. I reached him through Facebook to see how he was doing and he replied that he was well.

Alex, congratulations and know that we're all back here praying for your safety and very proud of your service.

Tonya Lewis, I want to reach out to you with prayer for an exciting last few weeks of pregnancy. May John and Lily be by your side to comfort and pamper you as you await the arrival of little Madeline.

As winter is still in full swing, I pray that each of you take a minute to check in on someone who may be experiencing some cabin fever from being housebound. Maybe they're in need of a little conversation and fellowship. Bless them with your company.

If you have any family news or would like to share a story from the past, feel free to e-mail me at brindle-labs@gmail.com or call me, 357-3469. Blessings to you.

Bicycles in the snow. Yes, that's what I said. I was skiing on a snowmobile trail a few days ago and what should I meet but three people riding bicycles. The bikes are designed for snow riding with very wide, probably four-inch-wide, tires that have a raised knobby tread. Something new every day. Another good way to get outdoors and have some fun.

We have the Greenstock Snowsports Snowmobile Club to thank for these trails. They groom the trails so many of us use. The club covers the towns of Greenwood, Woodstock, Bethel, and the townships of Albany and Milton. Lots of us non-snowmobilers use these trails and appreciate being able to do so. Robert Lowell, owner of Lowell's Saw Shop in Bethel and a longtime club member, told me that this year has been a costly one for the club due to the number of storms and the price of gas for the groomers. Donations by non-members who use the trails are always welcome to help offset these grooming costs. Donations can be sent to: Greenstock Snowsports Club, PO Box 27, Greenwood, Maine 04255.

The sap began flowing at Brian and Suzanne Dunham's farm Feb. 11. It was a small amount, but it was a good sign of what's to come. They will be having their annual open house with pancakes, maple syrup, the works later in March. You'll hear more about that when the time comes.

Local writer Nancy Brown had one of her stories selected for the anthology "Summer Stories." I just read her work, "Hay Day" and chuckled at the dry humor that popped up at the end. Very enjoyable. The book is now available at area libraries, and, if your library does not have it yet, you can request it through interlibrary loan. Many of you probably know Nancy. She writes the Bethel column in this paper, and her family owned and operated the Bethel Citizen for decades.

Lorene Mills returned to her home here Sunday after spending nine days caring for Eleanor Farrington at her home in Lovell.

With the recent 14-inch snowstorm, winter weariness has set in. I'm tired of it. Not that I don't still love to get out in the woods and on the trails to ski, I sure do. I'm just tired of dealing with winter and its incessant demands. This attitude change happens every year, but usually it doesn't hit until early March. Suspect it might be that bitter and nasty January that wore me down ahead of schedule. Oh well, the skiing is great, and it keeps me and many others occupied until the season changes.

Speaking of snow, maybe those snow dancers up in Upton could ease off just a bit. I suspect they may have become a little carried away with their gyrations and that brought us the 14 inches.

Another pat on the back to our Greenwood road crew who are out there by dark of night and at dawn's first rays cleaning up our roads. Thanks.

Please send news to 3taichi6@gmail.com.

and chili. Their next club meeting will be on March 5 at 7 p.m. at the clubhouse with the annual meeting scheduled for April 5, usual time at the clubhouse. Thanks to the faithful members of this club who do the trail dragging, I heard lots of good remarks about the quality of our trails despite the recent heavy snowfall. Town restaurants were crowded with snowmobilers on both Saturday and Sunday at noon.

The Larry Mercier Ice Fishing Derby was held on Saturday and for the 35th year in a row the $2,000 tagged fish wasn't caught. There were winners in the other divisions as reported by the Lewiston Sun Journal.

The People in Action Committee has announced that there will be a free lunch in the CEB dining room on Tuesday, March 18. That will also be voting day for the Town with two candidates, Brian Mills and Jim Adler, seeking the Selectman position being vacated by Susan Merrow. There is also a slot on the SAD 44 Board of Directors to be filled. So come into the village, cast your vote and enjoy a free lunch at the same time.

This Saturday, Feb. 22, a benefit auction, supper and entertainment will be held for Steve and Cindy Simmons. The auction will begin at 1 p.m. in the upstairs of the Town Hall. Bidders will surely find something they simply can't live without as items range from a quilt and other handmade items to a load of gravel. A number of businesses have donated gift certificates. Many local eateries are among those donations. Other interesting items are framed art works, furniture, a kayak and a total of 55 items. So there must be something here that you would like and you can be helping out someone at the same time. Following the auction there will be a spaghetti supper in the dining hall and thanks to the Good Food Store for supplying the food for this part of the event. After a great meal head upstairs for an evening of entertainment by Pete Coolidge and Friends and an improv group.

Absentee ballots are now available for the March 18, Town Election. You must request a ballot in person, or by calling the town office. The last day to request an absentee ballot is Thursday March 13, by 1 p.m. Town meeting is Saturday, March 15, at the town hall, followed by the election on Tuesday, March 18, from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Dog registrations are overdue! There is now a $25 late fee added to the registration cost.

The Upton Planning Board will meet Friday, Feb. 28 at the town office.

Winter has finally arrived in Upton. We have had plenty of cold, but not our usual snowfall. Now we have snow.

A visitor noticed an old hornets' nest that I have hanging in my garage. He told me that someone told him that an old nest, or a fake one, was a deterrent to other hornets building one in the area. It sounds like a good theory but I am not sure I believe it.

Word has is that Gretchen has returned to the Hanover Post Office after a temporary stint at the Rumford Post Office. Welcome back, Gretchen!

The Library Busy Bees are nearing completion of their current quilting project. With a few remaining finishing touches, the red, white and blue patriotic quilt will be ready to be presented to the intended recipient. The Bees continue to meet on Tuesdays and will begin work on their next project - a quilt to be raffled at the annual Celebration of Fall in October. All are welcome to join the Bees and offer design and theme ideas.

Due to the recent severe cold temperatures, the Gardner Roberts Memorial Library will be closed on Saturdays until March 7. It has become quite expensive to heat the library building with this winter's frigid temps, so for those wishing to sign out books, please visit the Town Office on Wednesdays where you may connect with Librarian Peg Susbury who will be available to assist you. Fresh baked hot donuts and other goodies will continue to be sold from the Town Office. The following titles have recently been added to the library:

Adult

Chiaverini, Jennifer: "Mrs. Lincoln's 'Rival,'" Kidd, Sue Monk: "Invention of Wings," Knott, Robert: "Robert B Parker's Bull River," Patterson, James: "First Love," Scott, James: "The Kept," Yousfzai, Malala: "I Am Malala."

Condolences to the families of Jack Davis and Eleanor Koske. Thoughts and prayers to each family member.

We were all saddened to hear about the structure fire in Sumner last week, our condolences to the Keach family on the loss of their loved ones, Robert and Della Keach. Our thoughts and prayers to family.

Clean up time after the storm yesterday (Feb. 13). Not sure just how much we got here, as I cannot get out to measure it and yes it's still snowing like crazy.

We cancelled our booking Lewiston due to the weather and road conditions and rescheduled it for next week.

Celebrating February birthdays are Sandra Martin Morgan, Suzanne Blaquiere, Ginny Lu-neau, Keith Hadley, Melody Hadley, JoAnne Appleby, Zachery Wilday, James Mason III, April Paine, Traci Poland, Mary Murphy, Tegan Atallah, Stacia Cordwell, Brenda Pratt and Julie Leblanc.

I have been watching the Olympic Games in Sochi - love to watch the figure skaters, and am glad it has been televised.

Spent the day yesterday in the kitchen baking; I made a bread pudding and a batch of chocolate chip cookies and put together corn chowder for supper.

Leroy, Zach and I got together for an afternoon practice session on Tuesday; we put in three to four hours at a time getting our songs learned. Earl Hart is home and doing well.

Well, that's all from the valley this week. Stay well and safe.

Gilead

I was pleased to see that the snowstorm that came through last Saturday night amounted to hardly any snow. The storm from Thursday night into Friday was enough.

My brother, Steve McLain, has been trying to get better from a nasty cold and still keep up with all the snow plowing.

The usual birds have been making frequent visits to the feeder during the bad weather. The Snow Buntings came back last Friday after the snow storm. They stayed only for a short time and were gone again.

Hugh and I went to Walmart last Saturday and ran into Sidney Murphy and had a chance to catch up. She still does a lot of volunteering at the Maine Veterans' Home in South Paris. Hugh ran into Pearl Jordan on his way into Walmart, also.

She said he shouldn't bother to shop because she bought all the good stuff again!

Dylan Gordon has been keeping the Gilead Town Office shoveled out after all these snow storms. He is doing a great job. Believe me, I appreciate having the steps cleaned off and not having to wade through the snow. He has also been kind enough to shovel out a path to the electric meter on the Gilead Historical Society's schoolhouse next to the office. He is doing this as part of his community service for high school that students need to complete before graduation. He is helping out two separate establishments: the Gilead Historical Society and the Town of Gilead.

Norm Buttrick and Cathy McGuire were at their place on the Bog Road this past weekend. They were surprised to see how much snow was on the roof. Norm stopped by our house on Sunday to borrow our roof rake so they both could work on the snow.

Got any news? Call 836-2987 or e-mail chapmal@hotmail.com.

Our last big snow storm brought 13 inches of powder to Mason. This is great for X-country skiing once you get a trail broken, but it slows Shiloh down quite a bit. He loves to go skiing with me, but the snow limits his romping through the woods. The new powder reaches up to his chest, so he has to leap rather than walk through it. The extra effort limits his excursions off the trail to about 10 to 15 yards. Then he comes back to the ski trail and just trots ahead of me most of the time. After an hour of "skiing," Shiloh is ready to nap for the rest of the day!

The new snow also has put an end of my logging with the Kubota. I was limited to logging off my established twitch trail before because the old snow made for tough going for my tractor. Now it is just too much! If I decide to do any more wood harvesting, it will have to be firewood yarded with a snowmobile! This gives me a better excuse to work in my wood working shop. I think I have plenty of firewood for next winter, anyway!

TRAIL NAME HONORS BLANCO-Mt Abram Ski Area and owner Rob Lally and wife Maureen honored Richard Blanco this past Saturday, with a new ski trail named "One Today", the name of Blanco's poem written for President Barack Obama's second inauguration. A resident of Bethel, Blanco expressed gratitude to Mt. Abram, the Lallys, and the local community who have warmly welcomed him since his arrival to the mountains of Western Maine. Here, Blanco cuts the ribbon to open the trail as Mt. Abram owners Maureen and Rob Lally look on. Forty-plus onlookers attended the official ribbon cutting and then followed Blanco to the Main Lodge for a book signing of his new memoirs, "For All of Us, One Today" where fans of Blanco waited in line for autographed copies. A private reception, birthday celebration for Blanco, and festivities and dancing followed in the Loose Boots Lounge.

The forecast is for two more storms this week. Yikes! I may even be able to catch up on my reading!

Waterford

By ROCKIE GRAHAM

The snow came last week and we are all still shoveling, snow blowing and otherwise cleaning up. Roads are getting narrower each time the snow falls and pretty soon we will all be down to one lane roads. The road crews are doing a great job, but there is not too much room to store the snow. David and Sadie did a great job cleaning off the roofs and pathways. It was a very hard job. They did great. They came in all white and wet. I stayed in and took it easy. I did have a very nice visit with Gloria this afternoon.

Gertrude and Lefty are having a time of it. They do not really want to go out at all. Yesterday, Lefty stood in the doorway and didn't want to let me in at all. I just wanted to empty their water dish and refill it. Eventually, I threw in some popcorn and she let me in. Then I emptied the old water out, cleaned the dish and refilled it. Then they were happy. They will be as happy as the rest of us when the snow stops falling and it gets warmer. I know Gertrude would like a bath. She used to get one at least once a day if not more often.

Being February Vacation, Sadie is around all day. That means a lot of cleaning, etc. gets done. Almost like spring cleaning time. We need it. With all the sand and other mess that gets dragged in, it is time.

I am ready for spring, itself to arrive. Not too long now.

Friday, Feb. 21, the Seed Swap and Seed saving workshop is occurring from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Fare Share Commons in Norway. Great place to check out seeds and your needs for the spring planting.

Monday, Feb. 24, the Bridge Group will meet at Waterford Library at 6:30 p.m. FMI call 583-2050.

Monday, March 3, Socrates Café will meet at the Waterford Library from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Also on Monday, March 3, the Knitting Group will meet at the Waterford Library from 2 to 4 p.m.

Tuesday, Feb. 25, the Lyme Support group will meet at 6 p.m. at the Fare Share Commons. This is a free group that meets monthly to discuss Lyme related issues for folks with Lyme disease.

For anyone who has something they would like to see in this column, please call 743-0583.

That is all for this week. Have a great week and hopefully you will be experiencing nicer weather.

Bethel Senior Citizens meet

The Bethel Senior Citizens Club met Feb. 12 at the Bethel alliance church for their meeting and luncheon with 43 members present. President Fran Head conducted the meeting and led the salute to the flag. The prayer was given by Nick Lutzo, youth pastor at the Bethel Alliance church.

Reports were given by Becky Keen and Arlene Lowell. The raffle was won by Arlene Lowell and the door prize by Norman Beaupre.

The next meeting will be March 12 at the Crosstone Restaurant in Woodstock. Meeting starts at 11 a.m. Reservations must be made before March 1 by calling Arlene Lowell at 824-2877 with your choice of chicken or fish. Price of dinner is $10.

Winners of the silver saves were Avery Angevine, Barbara Patterson and Becky Keen. Ruby Coolidge is putting together a photo album of senior trips and outings; if you have any pictures that you would like to share please give them to her.

Members spoke about valentines they had made or received. Fran Head read a few humorous stories.

The speaker was Nick Lutzo from the Alliance Church. His topic was "Mixing It Up," bridging the gap between Seniors and Teens, some of the things they have in common; volunteering, seniors at school and teens helping seniors with yard work and other jobs around the house; grandparents and great-grandparents interacting with grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Happy Birthday was sung to those having February birthdays: Barbara Mahler, Barbara Patterson, Phyllis Cross, Rhonda Mitchell, Carolyn Campbell and Betty Gingras.

MAHOOSUC KIDS

Enrichment opportunities for the children in SAD #44

From the Director

It is really looking like winter out there...the kids and staff were really excited to have an extended school vacation. All of us at MKA hope that you are having a great week and taking the time to get outdoors and play in the snow!

As you can see from our pictures, WES students have had a great time with the Hometown Ski program with over 40 students participating in afterschool skiing. All of our sites have been out with snowshoes making tracks around the school.

At CPS we are actually looking toward spring with our garden club well underway and our Summer Adventure Staff planning well into the future...

With "Community" as our theme, 24 afterschool staff from Western Maine gathered for the first of several workshops on Restorative Practices afterschool. It was a wonderful time to network and share ideas. I would also like to thank Amy Scott from BANC for facilitating a goal setting workshop for the MKA Board of Directors. Could a new MKA logo be in our future?

Have a wonderful vacation.

Julie Hart,
MKA Director

GOT Farms lends a hand at Preble Street

On Feb. 4 GOT Farms students from Telstar Middle and High School went on a field trip to the Preble Street Soup Kitchen in Portland. They volunteered their time to help prepare food for the lunch-time meal service. Students helped serve salad, sandwiches, soup, and desserts. They also talked to Preble Street's volunteer coordinator, Elise Boyson, and the head of the soup kitchen, Sue Ellen Whitmore. From these conversations, students learned a great deal about the issues of hunger and homelessness in Maine's largest city.

Unfortunately, there are more than 500 people who are currently experiencing homelessness in Portland. People can experience homelessness for a variety of reasons: they could be laid off from their job, they could experience a tragedy, or they might also come from another country and not have any family to rely on in hard times. Students learned to use more sensitive language, such as, "people who experience food insecurity," rather than, "the hungry" or "the needy." Students also learned that Preble Street receives donations of food from local stores and restaurants. For example, the sandwiches that students made for the lunch used bread donated by Trader Joe's that was one day past its sell-by date, but still perfectly good to eat. Preble Street also helps people care for their pets when they are struggling with feeding and housing them. Students left with some great ideas and inspiration for ways that they can help people who experience food insecurity in the Bethel community. Here are a few GOT Farms student reflections from the experience:

"I was sad to see how many people aren't able to get food." - Victoria Skillin, age 12

"I enjoyed volunteering at Preble Street because it was an amazing feeling knowing that you were helping so many people." - Cassidy Webster, age 12

"It's amazing to know that we can make a difference." - Tim Bigonski - age 13

"I want to go back to Bethel and incorporate more dinners at Bethel Alliance Church with our youth group." - Koley True, age 12

To learn more about the Preble Street Resource Center, visit their website: www.preblestreet.org.

Oxford County Democrats to caucus

The Oxford County Democrats will hold their 2014 Caucus Meetings on Sunday, March 2, between the hours of 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. at locations throughout the county. In the Rumford and Bethel areas, towns have opted to caucus on a regional basis, while other towns are holding their meetings in their individual municipality or by partnering with a neighboring town. Participation in the Democratic Caucus is open to registered Democrats. However, unregistered individuals or unenrolled voters may register and/or enroll at their Town Office by the close of business the week before the caucus, or on at the caucus location immediately prior to the opening of the caucus. In the event of a weather cancellation, the caucuses will be rescheduled for March 9. The business of the caucus will include supporting local and state candidates by signing nominating petitions, electing town committee officers, county committee members, ballot clerks, and delegates and alternates to the Maine Democratic State Convention to be held at the Cross Center in Bangor on May 30 and 31. Additional information is posted on the Oxford County Democrats' Facebook page, on the Maine Democratic Party website www.main-democrats.org or by e-mailing info@oxforddems.org.

Obituaries

ELEANOR KOSKELA

Eleanor Stanley Koskela, 90, of Woodstock passed away on Monday, Feb. 10, at her home with her family by her side. She was born in Littleton, N.H., on Oct. 18, 1923, the daughter of William and Pearl (Lakeway) Stanley. In 1937 Eleanor moved to Maine to live with her Uncle Volney and Aunt Sadie Lakeway. She graduated from Woodstock High School and married Taisto Koskela in 1941, coming to Mollyockett Mountain where she lived the rest of her life.

Eleanor was a member of the local women's group "The Willing Workers" and was a founding member of the Finnish American Heritage Society of Maine. Eleanor had a special love for children, leading her to transport kindergarten and special needs children to school for many years. She had great joy attending her grandchildren's many sporting events. An avid reader, hunter and fisherman, her interests encompassed a wide range of subjects. Eleanor and her husband Taisto worked their family farm for many years before retiring to travel across the U.S. and to Finland, and wintering in Florida.

She was predeceased by her husband Taisto and a daughter, Elaine Kesaris.
